

Partnering for Student Success

Free Test Preparation for Everyone

The College Board and Khan Academy are partnering to provide online SAT[®] test-preparation programs and resources entirely free of charge. For the first time ever, all students will have access to the best exam practice available, regardless of educational background or ability to pay for preparation.

Recognizing the inequities inherent to high-priced test preparation, we are proud to be working with educators, community groups, college access organizations, and parents to provide the necessary resources to propel students to college success.

World-Class Online Preparation

We are developing comprehensive practice materials that will be personalized, interactive, and engaging. Our online tool will serve students and educators alike with:

- Personalized tutorials on test content
- Official SAT practice questions and full-length tests
- Comprehensive reporting for students and educators
- Access anytime, anywhere — for free

Availability of Practice Materials

Beginning in June 2015 — well in advance of the launch of the redesigned SAT — Khan Academy will release an interactive and personalized practice program for the redesigned SAT that will be powered by thousands of practice problems, co-developed by the College Board and Khan Academy.

For students taking the current SAT (administered up until March 2016), we have made many free practice resources available.

On the College Board site
(sat.org/practice):

- SAT Question of the Day (also available as an iOS and Android app)
- Sample practice questions
- Official full-length SAT

On the Khan Academy site
(khanacademy.org/sat):

- Hundreds of previously unreleased SAT questions
- 200 preparation videos
